

Westfield Bank Elects Officers

WESTFIELD — The election of a new trustee, two honorary trustees and two new corporators took place at the 114th annual meeting of corporators of the Westfield Savings Bank at the Sheraton Inn, Wednesday night.

Arthur W. Knapp, president, told the meeting that assets of the bank on March 31 were $50,130,612, a gain for the year of $1,402,619. Deposits were at a record high of $44,391,509 on March 31, representing an increase of $1,605,964 for the year, and real estate loans also reached a new high, totaling $36,954,716, a gain for the year of $1,480,895.

The new member of the board of trustees elected during the meeting is Albert F. Ferst, president of Camfour, Inc., of this city, distributor of boats, campers and firearms.

Elected honorary trustees were Franklin H. Gath, former president of the Hampden National Bank and retired vice-president of Third National Bank of Hampden County, a trustee since 1940, and William C. Chisholm, former president of the Foster Machine Co., a member of the board of trustees since 1946. Mr. Gath had been a member of the auditing committee of the board since 1952 and Mr. Chisholm had served in that capacity since 1961.

Mr. Knapp paid tribute to Mr. Gath and Mr. Chisholm "for their long and faithful service to Westfield Savings Bank," and said "we will continue to look to them for their advice and counsel."

Elected corporators were Robert A. Watson, owner of Hillbrook House, and Edward B. Welch, director of admissions at Westfield State College.

In his report, Mr. Knapp said 1967 will be "a year of good accomplishment for Westfield Savings Bank." The year will bring the construction and opening of the bank's new branch office in Agawam, "and we are looking forward to extending the services of Westfield Savings Bank to this rapidly growing community."

This month marks the 10th anniversary of the bank's participation in the school savings program of the West Springfield schools, and also the first anniversary of its participation in the Agawam school savings program. "The students of the two communities are showing a fine response to the thrift programs that are available to them," Mr. Knapp said, and he noted that West Springfield school deposits are in the area of a third of a million dollars.

Mr. Knapp was re-elected president during the meeting, and three vice-presidents re-elected were: Norman A. Clarke, president of the Columbia Manufacturing Co., David C. Colton, president of the Colton Agency, Inc., and Wesley L. Mitchell, vice-president of the Western Mass. Electric Co. Atty. Horace N. Fuller was re-elected clerk of the corporation.

Trustees re-elected for three years: Norman A. Clarke, David C. Colton, Eugene V. Oehlers of Agawam, and John E. Reed, president of Sterling Radiator Co.

George B. Brooks, administrator of Noble Hospital, and Norman A. Clarke were elected to the auditing committee of the board of trustees, succeeding Mr. Gath and Mr. Chisholm, and A. Stanley Rzewski was re-elected to the auditing committee. This committee, during its organization meeting, elected Hitchcock & Co., of Springfield, certified public accountants, to conduct the annual audit of the bank.

NEW YORK — There were approximately 11,900 fire deaths in the United States in 1964, an increase of 100 over 1963, the Insurance Information Institute reports.

McGrevy, now at Manlius Prep, is a six-foot-five, 220 pound tackle and end who received All-Western Mass. honors at Agawam High School and was named honorable mention on the All-America Scholastic Team. He was also voted lineman of the year for the Brownies.

Alan King To Entertain At GOP Dinner In Boston

BOSTON — Massachusetts' four top constitutional officers — all Republicans — will be honored by the State Republican Committee, June 1st, at a $100-a-plate "Stars of Victory Party," it was announced Saturday by F. Gregg Bemis, Jr., dinner chairman, and Joseph A. Spaulding, state committee chairman.

U.S. Senator Edward W. Brooke, Governor John A. Volpe, Lieutenant Governor Francis W. Sargent and Attorney Elliot Richardson, named by Bemis as the "four men who have put Massachusetts back in the national spotlight," will be the "stars of victory" at the event at the Commonwealth Armory, Boston.

A featured speaker at the party will be the 40-year old Howard H. Baker, Jr., first popularly elected Republican Senator in Tennessee history.

Alan King, comedian who has starred on Broadway, television, and records, will be one of the entertainers lined up for the event, Bemis said.

Governor's Councillor Raymond Fontana will be master of ceremonies.

"We're going to use the proceeds to put the Republican party on a sound fiscal basis in Massachusetts, strengthen the party state wide, give candidates in future elections the support they deserve, and make the two-party system in this state a dynamic reality instead of an empty phrase," Spaulding said, "and that will be healthy for all of us."

Serving on the event committee with Bemis are Mrs. W. Benjamin Bacon of Beverly, Alexander Ellis, Jr. of Concord, Benjamin Gargill of Boston, Morris Gray of Dedham, Albert L. Manzi of Paxton, Harcourt Wood of Dedham, Lloyd B. Waring of Rockport, Patrick Volpe of Wakefield, and treasurer Jason A. Aisner of Brookline.

Civil Service Reform Must Remove Intangible Barriers, Taxpayers Say

Civil service reform in Massachusetts must include removal of the "intangible barriers to excellence in public service," the Massachusetts Taxpayers Foundation states in the latest issue of its publication, "Affairs of State."

Described as intangible barriers by the foundation are the unfavorable attitudes toward public service in the Commonwealth. "There are many views of public employment which, if not corrected, will work against whatever steps are finally taken to improve the mechanics (of the civil service system)."

As examples of negative attitudes toward the public service, the publication lists:

The legislator who thinks of public employment as a means of getting rid of job seekers or as a comfortable refuge for himself after his legislative years.

An executive branch attitude that patronage is a necessity to fulfill political obligations and to make execution of administration policies easier.

The professional person who identifies the public service with poor pay, little challenge and lowly professional status.

The taxpayer and voter who regards public employment as inefficient, political, corruptible and a last-choice career.

Calling for "concrete action" to eliminate negative attitudes and unfavorable images of the public service, the foundation notes: "Until Massachusetts recognizes and deals squarely with this aspect of the problem, excellence in public service will be difficult to achieve."

Included in the publication is a series of questions and answers on the civil service reform issue and excerpts from news media editorials in support of modernization of the civil service system. Free copies are available from the Taxpayers Foundation, 145 Tremont Street, Boston.

The Shriners of Melha Temple plan to use a unique balloon contest to mark the opening of their Melha Shrine Circus Ticket Office. Although the Ticket Office is scheduled to open Monday, April 17th at 10:00 a.m., the Shriners plan their special event for tomorrow at 1:00 p.m.

They plan to release a truck load of balloons from Bradlees-Stop and Shop parking lot at the Century Shopping center in West Springfield at 1:00 p.m. on Saturday.

To each balloon released will be attached a brightly covered tag which will inform anyone finding it that if the person finding the balloon lives in a community that is the greatest distance from Springfield but still within a radius of two hundred miles, the finder and a companion may be the guests of the Shriners at the opening night of the Shrine Circus, Thursday, May 11th. All traveling expenses will be paid by the Shriners.

Richard C. Zoller, Past Potentate and general chairman of this year's Shrine Circus, had invited a number of dignitaries to be present for the balloon release. It is also expected that the Shriners will have their own clowns present to help entertain the crowd along with some of the motorized equipment of the Hadji's, which includes their colorful scooter, bikes, jeeps and other equipment.

The Shrine Circus box office will be located at the main entrance to the Eastern States Coliseum, West Springfield, and will be open from 10:00 a.m. to 6:00 p.m. Monday through Saturday starting Monday, April 17th.

COASTLANDS: Too little is public, Too much is polluted

Condensed From BOSTON SUNDAY GLOBE, MARCH 19, 1967

To the sea-weary Pilgrims, the Massachusetts coast represented comfort and security and hope for the future.

And for more than two centuries, Massachusetts has depended upon the sea for her economic and political power. The coastline is still her greatest natural asset.

The beautiful bay spotted shore provides recreation for millions of residents and tourists. It also contains undeveloped acreage valuable for wild life conservation and for its great natural beauty.

In addition, the coast supports three of the state's major industries - tourism, commercial fishing and shell fishing.

Now, however, the picture has darkened.

The coast has been a generous provider, but it has not been repayed with the attention it deserves.

There is not enough public shoreline to meet present recreational demands. The situation is critical and becomes worse week by week.

Coastal waters are grossly polluted by filthy rivers and by municipal sewerage outfalls.

The most pressing problem, by far, is space.

Massachusetts has 600 miles of ocean shoreline, but 90 per cent is privately owned. Of the hundreds of miles of ocean beaches, the state owns less than six. The Metropolitan District Commission owns another 16.

This works out to about one-half inch of public beach for each of the 3.5 million residents of eastern Massachusetts.

More than 30 miles of ocean front in the Cape Cod National Seashore is open to the general public, but the area is at least two hours away from most citizens.

In addition, about five miles of beach in the Cape Cod - Buzzards Bay area are town owned but open to the public.

The value of other municipally-owned beaches to the public is uncertain at best. Many are now restricted to town residents.

The need for more state owned shoreline has been recognized for a dozen years, but virtually nothing has been done.

Now the coastline is so developed that state acquisition will be tremendously expensive, yet studies and public officials agree something must be done.

The grave danger of delaying state acquisition was first expressed in a 1957 report prepared for the Legislature.

This report said "intolerable over-crowding is chronic" at state beaches and estimated the state's recreation demands would jump four-fold in the following 20 years. It urged acquisition of 21 miles of ocean beach in a 5-year period.

Then, a Federal study by the Outdoor Recreation Resources Review Commission in 1964 said the state should own 20 additional miles of beach.

In 1966 the Metropolitan Area Planning Council urged acquisition of 70,000 acres of land in Eastern Massachusetts for recreation, but did not specify how much should be on the coast.

Also in 1966, a private study prepared for the Department of Natural Resources said the state should spend $23 million to acquire land for recreation in the following five years as "just a beginning."

During the past decade, the state has made an effort to improve existing facilities, but it has declined to issue bonds or to allocate funds in any quantity for the purchase of new coastal properties.

In 1957, the problem of land acquisition was approaching a point of no return. Now it is on the very brink.

Private interests are developing coastlands at such a rate that acquisition will be enormously expensive.

In only a few years it may be impossible.

Federal funds are available to assist in purchasing land for recreation, but they must be matched fifty-fifty by the state.

If Massachusetts hopes to provide adequate recreation for its citizens, and to support the tourist industry, it must now pay the price for its previous reluctance.

Studies and officials both recommend a bond issue as the only practical way to raise enough cash. Estimates range upward from $15 million.

Public pressure on legislators and other officials was instrumental in giving life to anti-pollution programs. Similar pressure must be brought now.

The prospect of super-congested beaches is even more frightening than the prospect of raising necessary funds.

Related to shore acquisition is the problem of shore retention.

Early in this century, researchers discovered that most of the shoreline is eroding at the astonishing rate of one to three feet a year.

Luckily this problem caught the official eye. Major projects by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, the State Department of Public Works, the M. D. C., the Massachusetts Port Authority, and local communities have slowed erosion considerably.

It will never be stopped entirely, and there are still critical spots, notably Plum Island.

Pollution is another problem - a much larger one - which is just beginning to be taken seriously.

Pollution of coastal waters has been so great it has forced the closing of more than a dozen beaches at various times.

Gross pollution has also closed a score of prime shellfishing areas. Commercial clam diggers in many other areas must now have their haul purified before it can be sold.

And, until recently, uncontrolled dredging and filling threatened the state's salt marshes - the essential breeding grounds of lobster, shellfish and many of the fish caught commercially at sea.

This last threat was brought under control by the Coastal Wetlands Act of 1965, which protects 45,000 acres of salt marsh - 70 per cent of the state's total.

The research which led to that bill has prompted Sen. Edward M. Kennedy to file similar legislation in the current session of Congress.

Kennedy's bill would allow the Secretary of the Interior to take private land for the National Estuarine Area.

Just Being Veteran Is No Guarantee For Hospitalization

Just being a veteran does not guarantee anyone hospitalization by the Veterans Administration. VA first takes care of all eligible veterans who need treatment for service-connected diseases or injuries.

Next, are veterans separated for disability or receiving VA compensation for disability, who need hospitalization for a non-service-connected disability. They are admitted if a bed is available.

The third priority group are wartime (or eligible post-Korean Conflict) veterans without service-connected conditions who may, under the law, be admitted to VA hospitals if all three of the following conditions are met: (1) hospitalization is deemed necessary, (2) they state under oath they are financially unable to defray the cost of the necessary hospital charges elsewhere, and (3) if beds are available.

Peacetime veterans are eligible for care in a VA hospital only if they were discharged under other than dishonorable conditions for disease or injury incurred in line of duty, or are receiving VA compensation for service-connected disability.

VA hospitals, like other hospitals, accept emergency patients as a lifesaving measure, and VA priorities for admission are waived in such cases.

Battle Lines Drawn

An Army is for fighting! Cadets are the future officers of an Army - learning the rules of warfare, learning to lead their forces in such a way that their battles will be won.

Salvation Army Cadets do not differ greatly. They, too, are the future officers of an Army. They are learning the rules of warfare - learning to lead their forces to win battles.

The Salvation Army differs from a more conventional Army concept in methods and in the ultimate goal, for The Salvation Army battles endlessly to overcome the forces of destruction wherever they are met.

In a two-year course at the School for Officers' Training in New York City, Cadets daily face the challenge of reaching people to accomplish their physical, social, moral and spiritual rehabilitation.

As part of their training, Salvation Army Cadets must pack their weapons and take to the field to meet and conquer the enemy where he may be found. Weapons in this case consist of Bible, song books, tambourines and musical instruments. Brass instruments are common, but guitars, mandolins, banjos and accordions also take the appeal to every age and interest group encountered. They may be sent to New York's Bowery, Harlem, or a comfortable suburban community.

Three groups of cadets will be waging war within the borders of the Bay State this month. Invasions will take place on April 21st at Everett, Plymouth and Worcester.

During week-long campaigns, these dedicated officers-to-be will visit local nursing homes, hospitals and correctional institutions. Open air meetings will be held daily to bring their message to the street corner where it may be heard by all. Youth meetings will be held each afternoon, reaching children with no church affiliation. Door-to-door calls will be made, meeting people in their homes and searching for those whose problems need the warm-heartedness of The Salvation Army.

Personnel from the School for Officers' Training and the local Corps Officers supervise and counsel the cadets in their busy schedule.

Salvation Army Cadets, in addition to this field training, follow an accelerated and intensive study program which includes Bible, doctrine, Salvation Army and church history, leadership training, music, social studies and other related subjects. After commissioning, Salvation Army officers spend three to five years in directed study and supervised in-service training. All are encouraged to avail themselves of educational opportunities at local universities, while some, working in specialized fields, are required to follow advanced studies.

American Legion Auxiliary

By MRS. GLADYS CATCHEPAUGH

MEMBERSHIP!!!

This month, the National Membership Chairman has announced that "the national total is running several thousand ahead of the enrollment for 1966 on the same date as last year." We wish that were true of our Unit, but we are still a few members behind last year's enrollment. So often, if a member can't get to meetings, she keeps meaning to bring in the dues when she does make it and the time slips by.

"We are inviting eligible women to join the American Legion Auxiliary. A lot of our activities have provided inspiring examples of patriotic womanhood at work as volunteers in undertakings which express the ideals of free America. Since that first National Convention in Kansas City in 1921, changes have come swiftly to our country and to the world. Wars have been fought, populations have exploded, villages have grown to cities and cities have overrun the countryside. Conditions are vastly different, but the basic needs remain the same: The need of the disabled war veteran for aid and comfort. The need of the distressed children for care and guidance. The need of the nation for adequate defenses against the aggressions of dictatorships. The need of Americans for understanding of and devotion to the ideals and principles of their free way of life. To help supply these basic needs, our American Legion Auxiliary has devoted its major energies for the past 45 years. Let's help our Unit Membership Chairman, Jane Whalen, to complete our membership drive NOW." As Jane says, "We have worked with The American Legion in erecting an imposing monument of patriotic achievements. Let's not let them down now. If your dues are not yet in for 1967, please try to get them to the next meeting—May 1st. Convention is only about a month away. And if you can bring in a new member, we welcome all eligible women who would like to join us."

SCHOLARSHIP CARD PARTY

Last Thursday the Scholarship Card Party Committee met with its Chairman, Mrs. Adele Gallano, at her home and completed plans for a gala evening that promises to be fun for all who attend.

This party will be held at the Captain Charles Leonard House on Tuesday evening, April 25th, at 8 o'clock. Prizes for each table, many door prizes, delicious refreshments and surprises will make it enjoyable for everyone.

And the proceeds will be used for a scholarship for some Agawam High School pupil, which makes it worthwhile for all of us. Tickets are $1.00. Make your reservations soon, as the number we can accommodate is limited.

NOTES

Mrs. Isobel Goss entered Springfield Hospital last week for a cataract removal. She is recovering nicely and will be home soon. Jane Whalen has enjoyed a two-week vacation with relatives in Florida. Glad she had a good time—but glad to have her home again too. We missed her.

REMEMBER: County Banquet on 22nd.

Scholarship Card Party on 25th.

Juniors' Mother-daughter Banquet on 30th.

CHANGE FOR RESERVATIONS

It has been found necessary to make a change in Reservations Chairmen for the Spring Smorgasbord to be given by the United Women's Fellowship of First Baptist Church on May 6th. This will be the last such event to be held in the old church, since the new hall and kitchen are nearing completion and the old sanctuary due to be torn down as soon as the hall is completed.

The Smorgasbord promises to be a delightful affair, and it is hoped to serve about two hundred from the response being received. Make your reservations as soon as possible with either Mrs. William Porter of 59 Raymond Circle (phone 739-3029) or Mrs. Eugen Southworth of 56 Lealand Ave. (phone 732-8262). Tickets are $1.75 for adults and 75 cents for children under 12. The meal will be served from 5 to 7 continuously.
